Tod Beardsley is employed at CISA, the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency, part of the US government, as the Vulnerability Analysis and Operations Team Lead. He's also a founder and CNA point of contact for AHA!. He spends most of his time involved in vulnerability research and coordinated vulnerability disclosure (CVD). He has over 30 years of hands-on security experience, stretching from in-band telephony switching to modern IoT implementations. He has held IT ops, security, software engineering, and management positions in large organizations such as Rapid7, 3Com, Dell, and Westinghouse, as both an offensive and defensive practitioner. Tod is a CVE Board member has authored several research papers, and hosted the Security Nation podcast. He is also a Travis County Election Judge in Texas, and is an internationally-tolerated horror fiction expert.

Tod can be uniquely identified at https://github.com/ todb, and recognized by his Gravatar.

Tales from a Top Threat Buster

Discover the Hidden Vulnerability Intelligence within CISA's KEV Catalog Ground Floor, 14:30 Wednesday

Dive into the dynamic world of cybersecurity intelligence, focusing on the Known Exploited Vulnerabilities (KEV) catalog, initially crafted by the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA) for government use but now a cornerstone across industries. Join me as I unravel the insights hidden within this treasure trove of exploit intelligence, offering a fresh perspective on prioritizing vulnerabilities in today's ever-evolving threat landscape.

Glenn Thorpe

Attend our upcoming Black Hat USA speaking session, where the brilliant and fearless Dr. Venkman—oops, we mean, our esteemed Principal Security Researcher Emily Austin – explores the mind blowing magic of TLS certificates and how they quietly zap man-in-themiddle attacks.

When: Thursday, Aug. 8 Time: 10:20 a.m. Location: Business Hall Theater D
